

“Minding the Gap:” Counseling
Strategies for Tweens and Teens with Hearing Loss
Course# CE-SSCHL-13-004

ASSESSMENT QUESTIONS

- 1: A teen’s frontal cortex is developing:
 - a) more white matter
 - b) more gray matter
 - c) more white and gray matter
 - d) more blue tint

2. Our emotions are mediated by:
 - a) gray matter
 - b) the limbic system
 - c) pruning and organizing
 - d) white matter

3. Trust is positively correlated to:
 - a) patients following our recommendations
 - b) arriving on time for appointments
 - c) patient satisfaction
 - d) A and B

- 4: Brain researchers report that the best way for teens to understand their own development is through:
 - A) book clubs
 - B) conversations with adults
 - C) black-and-white thinking
 - D) a reluctance to self-identify

- 5: When engaged in conversation with teens, it is recommended we discuss:
 - a) Something they want to talk about
 - b) Something they know more about than we do
 - c) Something that draws out their own concerns, reactions, moral dilemmas
 - d) All of the above

You must get 4 out of 5 items correct to pass the quiz. You will have 2 tries. You must pass the quiz before you can download your certificate(s) of participation.